The Heyday Inn was built around 1875 by Zadok Pierce. It was at that time called Pierce Station, which was a grocery store, hotel, and feed store. By stagecoach, travelers would come from the V & T Train Station in Minden to Genoa, then to Mountain House for dinner. Then onward across 11-mile flat, across the West Walker River and down Hoge Canyon to Pierce Station where the stage line ended. Passengers on their way to Sweetwater, Bridgeport, Bodie and Aurora would spend the night. The next day a spring wagon would take the passengers and mail the rest of the journey. In 1903, W. E. Reading and Gould Reading from Bodie bought Pierce Station. They changed the name to W. E. Reading General Merchandise. They served the valley ranchers and mining towns in the area. Around 1945, Perry and Gerri Aikins bought W. E. Reading General Merchandise and called it the Heyday Inn. They opened it as a bar and restaurant until the early 60's when they sold it. In 1980, Bill & Sherri Carlson and John & Marilyn Ithurburu purchased it from Ernest Grosso. They did all the remodeling themselves and opened in January 1983, roughly 100 years since it was built. The outside of the building is original but the inside was all redone. On July 1, 2001, Bill and Ellie Bohlin took over operations of the Heyday and continue to operate it as a restaurant and bar.

The current owners of the Heyday Inn are aware of its historic value to the community.

Heyday Inn offers our great menu items (and more) for catering, banquets or meetings.
